Area Parents Of Son Killed To Attend Accused's Trial

BANGOR—Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Cascario, Bangor R.D. 3, parents of Nicholas Cascario, 19, who was slain in Georgia while attending his son's alleged slayers' trial in Appling County, Georgia, next week.

They will be accompanied by John Frinzi, Easton; Dr. Nicholas

Cascario, and Frank Cascario, uncles of the victim, and Daniel Fiorot, 19, who was with the youth when he was slain. Fiorot will appear as a witness.

An Appling County grand jury indicted Wilton Edwards, 39, and Robert Edwards, 19, his nephew, yesterday on charges of murder.

The trial is expected to begin on Monday. Wilton Edwards is charged with first degree murder. Robert is charged with second degree murder and helping his uncle in the stabbing.

The stabbing happened after a car bumping incident on U. S. Route 1 about six miles north of Baxley, Ga., while the two Bangor youths were returning from Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Donald Whitaker Jr. has been appointed by Rep. Francis E. Walter to serve as a page for the March session of Congress. He is president of the senior class in Stroud Union High School and a member of the Student Council, high school band and chorus.

Charles Bell was projectionist for the film, "South Carolina." President Percy Marvin read a letter from John R. Wilson, retired Y secretary now living in Hollywood, Fla.

Theodore Kirch reported progress on the quilt coat being constructed at the YMCA and Edwin Butts gave the social committee report.

Next Wednesday's meeting will be at the Pennsylvania Power and Light Co. offices on Phillips St. A film, "Perfect Switch," will be shown and Ralph Reppert, local manager for the utility, will speak on modern electric power.

Kirch, who is vice president of the club, will announce plans for pre-Spring programs.

H. RAY SAUNDERS, chief clerk of Monroe County commissioners, yesterday told the commissioners that Tuesday and Wednesday, Feb. 19 and 20, has been designated as the days to distribute surplus food.

Hours for distribution, for each day, are 10 a.m. to noon, and 1 to 4 p.m.

Saunders added that all persons drawing surplus food are instructed to bring their own containers.

In other business, the commissioners reminded persons seeking a public office that Feb. 26 is the first legal day to obtain signatures on nomination petitions. Also that March 18, at 5 p.m., is the deadline for filing the petitions with the County Board of Election.

Adventist Pastor Honored
PASTOR Bruce J. Fox of the Stroudsburg Seventh-day Adventist Church, has been chosen Pastor Of The Month for Blue Mountain Academy at Hamburg, Pa.

The Academy is a secondary school operated by the constituency of the 62 churches of the East Pennsylvania Conference of Seventh-day Adventists.

Three area young people; Carol Banks, Gary Christman and Brian Fairfield are enrolled among the nearly four-hundred students at the school.

Pastor Fox will speak to the entire student body and faculty, twice this weekend. He will talk tonight and again tomorrow morning, illustrating both of his lectures, which are designed to teach the affect of spiritual life upon the brain.

Bangor High Readies For Science Fair

BANGOR — Plans were announced yesterday as nearing completion for the annual Science Fair to be held at the Bangor Area Joint Senior High School on Thursday evening, Feb. 21 by Charles M. Sandwick Jr., fair director and head of the science department of the Bangor Area Joint Schools.

The fair will open at 7 p.m. on that evening and close at 9 p.m. for the public inspection tour, while judging will be held the evening previous on Wed., Feb. 20, starting at 6:30 p.m. The annual event will be staged in the gym at the school located at Five Points in Upper Mt. Bethel Township and will be open to the public.

It is expected that some 250 projects will be displayed mostly from grades 10, 11 and 12, even though students of the Junior High School have also been invited to participate. The junior high school advisors are Clarke Cleaver and Warren Eberts, both science teachers in that school.

Ribbons to be Awarded
Ribbons will be awarded to the first three place winners in the following categories: In Senior High, Plant Biology, Zoology, Chemistry, Physics and Earth and Space Science; in Junior High, Life Science and Physical Science.

All prize winners will have the ribbons attached for the public viewing on the 21st and medals will be presented to the winners at a special assembly later in the school year. All winners and some of the honorable mentioned projects will be entered in the Lehigh Valley Science Fair at Muhlenberg College in April from Grades 9 through 12.

JANE C. GREENE, Stroudsburg, has been appointed a certified hunter safety instructor, it was announced yesterday by the National Rifle Association of America, Washington, D.C.

The new top ranked instructor passed a specified series of tests and served a prescribed period of time in training activities before receiving certification.

She is now qualified to conduct classes in gun operation, safe gun-handling, and techniques of shooting on the target range and in the field to all interested members of this community.

Mrs. Greene joins the ranks of selected personnel which the NRA maintains throughout the country in a nation-wide small arms education program. The program has been in operation since 1976, and since that time millions of people have been taught to handle and enjoy firearms safely.

Disabled Vets Deadline Lifted

THE GENERAL deadline for vocational rehabilitation training for disabled Korean Conflict veterans has been eliminated, according to Veterans Administration Officials.

The deadline for completion of such training formerly was January 31, 1964, or nine years after being separated from the armed forces, whichever was earlier.

Under terms of a law passed by the last Congress, a veteran now has nine years after discharge from the armed forces in which to complete his training, with no cut-off deadline at an earlier date.

Eligible disabled Korean Conflict veterans may receive training, of such character and length as necessary to restore their ability to work, up to four years and in some cases exceeding four years.

Before starting their training, they must be interviewed and tested by VA counselors to determine their aptitudes and interests.

Temple Israel To Present Ner Tamid Award Tonight

IN observance of Scout Sabbath, Rabbi Bernhard Presler will present the Ner Tamid Award to Larry Flesher of Troop 300 at the services tonight at 8 at Temple Israel.

The service will be conducted by Rabbi Presler, assisted by Larry Flesher.

The Ner Award is a pendant representing the eternal light that hangs in front of the Holy Ark in the Synagogue. It is attached to a blue and white ribbon and a bronze bar pin that carries the inscription in Hebrew letters "Ner Tamid," and in English "Eternal Light."

The Ner Tamid in the Synagogue or our own day goes back to the seven-branched Menorah (Candelabra) of the ancient Temple of Solomon. By day and by night the seven flames of the Menorah burned unceasingly before the altar, symbolizing the eternal presence of G-D.

At the conclusion of the services the congregation is invited to an

Replica Of Declaration Of Independence Offered

A GREAT American, Will Rogers, who often bragged of his Cherokee Indian ancestry, once said, "My ancestors did not come over on the Mayflower. They met the boat."

And nobody was more proud of America than Rogers, who was the Ambassador of Good Will from the United States to the many nations of the world. Though Mr. Rogers arrived with a smile and left a laugh behind him, nobody was more serious about American traditions than he.

Americans who are to follow in his footsteps, must know as he did, the importance of the cherished traditions which have been left in trust as a unique American birthright. Among our most treasured belongings are The Declaration of Independence, The Bill of Rights, The Star Spangled Banner, The Gettysburg Address, and many, many others . . . all of which are in the Daily Record's Americana Historical Document Collection.

An order blank for the document appears on page seven. Readers who want to start their collections may avail themselves of this week's document which is offered for the first time. It is the Declaration of Independence. If you have not started a collection . . . you may bring the coupon with 26 cents for each document you want to The Daily Record, Stroudsburg, Pa., and get as many documents as you wish. Then you may continue your collection with the new document which we will offer next week. You need not get any documents you don't want . . . only those you do. Purchase of the complete collection is not compulsory.

These documents are crafted of heavy parchment which looks and actually feels old . . . just like the magnificent originals. Each document is suitable for framing for home, office, den, post, club, school or public building. Available only with the coupon.

Green Puppy Born In N.Y.

PLAINVIEW, N.Y. (AP)—If you want to see something different in dogs, take a look at eight-day-old Pistachio.

His color is green. It's no joke either. He was born that shade.

"I thought I was out of my mind," said Pistachio's mistress, Mrs. Louise Barry, when she first saw him with his five brothers and sisters.

The dog's mother is Duchess, a black and tan German Shepherd. The other pups in the litter are of varying shades of brown. Only Duchess knows the color of their father.

Big Plans For A Bog

In Northern New Jersey lies a large open tract called the Great Swamp. The Federal Government, which notes the sparrow's fall, has plans for it. Too many plans, according to Sen. Clifford Case.

The Interior Department has been buying it up as a wildlife refuge, planning to leave it much as it is for the accommodation of water birds.

The Federal Aviation Agency has been working on a plan to pave it and turn it into a fourth major airport for the City of New York.

And the Army Engineers have been planning to drain it so that people and industries can move into it.

Senator Case says there isn't the slightest evidence that the various Federal Departments involved have ever even spoken to each other about their conflicting plans for the Great Swamp, and all seem to be going ahead with vigor in pursuing their ends.

All of them, of course, are spending tax money in their rival projects, even though two out of the three agencies obviously must be wasting all they spend.

This unhappy story recalls the two-headed turtle, whose heads fought each other for the privilege of grabbing food to put in their mutual stomach.

One thing is sure. Whichever head wins in this case, the taxpayers lose.

Opinions Of Other Editors

The Annual Tax Struggle

This is the time of the year, as no one needs to be reminded, that finds many people struggling with their income tax return. Struggling is the word because try as they may, Uncle Sam's tax authorities seem unable to simplify the return. They have not simplified it enough, at any rate, to alleviate by much the hours of toil necessary to gathering data and completing the forms sent by the IRS.

Even when this effort is over a lot of people have a nagging feeling that they may have missed some tax-saving advantage. In an attempt to help with this problem various tax services are available in most communities.

The tax services offer to provide, for a fee, information describing the many tax deductions available to the beleaguered taxpayer. The Internal Revenue Service also does what it can to help. But these efforts oftentimes are not sufficient. Their insufficiency illustrates a serious flaw in the income method of tax collection now in use.

Why should such a large percentage of government revenue depend on a system involving exemptions, deductions and so forth? The indefiniteness means that those who can not afford or understand tax advice may pay more than necessary. There are other forms of taxation which do not suffer from these obvious defects—for example the so-called transaction, or use tax.

As income tax returns become ever more complicated some alternative tax measures increase in attractiveness.

A Tale Of Two Cities

Tucked away on the financial pages in widely separated columns the other day were two sets of statistics. They at once suggested the title of an old story, "A Tale of Two Cities."

The statistics pointed to a glowing tale of automobile prosperity and a depressing drama of steel gloom — and the cities, of course, were Detroit and Pittsburgh. (I am using these names symbolically, for I realize that both cars and steel are manufactured in many places throughout the land.)

The automotive column led off with the record profit of $1.4 billion which accrued in 1962 to General Motors. It also set before the reader the luscious figures that signaled the big Chrysler comeback. Ford and the American Motors Company had done superlatively well, too. The 1962 automotive cash dividends jumped 19 per cent over the figures for 1961. But looking in another column at the 1962 steel company dividends, there was a drop of 5 per cent from the figures for the previous year.

Comparing the two sets of statistics, one couldn't help but think of that day last April when President Kennedy blasted the steel companies for their attempt to add $6 a ton to their prices.

The Presidential implication was that the steel companies were trying to gouge the rest of the economy. But what seems to have happened, during the past ten months, is that one set of dividend receivers, the stockholders in the automobile companies, have been favored over another set, the stockholders in steel.

What the President did, on that day in April, was to favor Detroit at the expense of Pittsburgh, which is something that no one who has been elected to represent all the people should have done.

Right at this point I want to say that I have nothing against the automobile companies: it always makes me happy when they are prosperous.

When Charlie Wilson made that supposedly terrible remark about "what's good for General Motors is good for the country" he was uttering a sentiment that in nine cases out of ten holds true. For it is inconceivable that the entire U.S. economy does well when Detroit has a fine year.

But even though the automobile companies deserve good things, would it have hurt the U.S. economy as a whole if they had made a little less money last year and the steel companies had made a little more? Obviously, the economy would have been strengthened if some of the profits that flowed into Detroit had been diverted, instead, to Pittsburgh.

Economists can argue, of course, that if the steel companies had raised the price of carbon steel to Detroit, the increase would subsequently have been added into the price of the automobile to the ultimate consumer, in 1963 if not in 1962. This, however, is questionable.

No matter what the believers in "administered prices" say to the contrary, automobile prices are competitively set, Detroit, today, may give "more car for the money," but, with Volkswageners coming in from overseas, it is not likely to try to get more money for the car.

Indeed, it is even questionable that Pittsburgh could have kept its own tonnage price of steel at the proposed higher level for very long. Steel competition from abroad would almost certainly have prevented it. But let us assume that the steel companies had been able to command a little more in cash for their product from the automobile companies throughout 1962.

The increase in income could only have helped the steel men to play something back into the improvement of their plant. The money-saving oxygen process and other technological advances would have spread to a few more steel mills.

This would have made the American economy sounder at bottom, and more capable of serving the automobile companies at a cheaper price for steel later on.

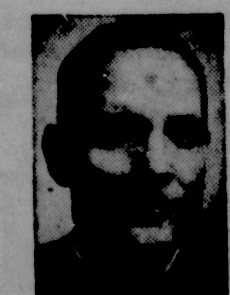

What happened last April, when the steel companies backed down in face of the White House threat, might be likened to a blood transfusion in which the weaker party gave up some of his precious life fluid to the stronger.

It was actually a transfusion-in-reverse. It did not result in anything beyond the subsidization of one set of stockholders at the expense of another. Detroit won and Pittsburgh lost.

Instead of helping the economy as a whole, the effect was to create an imbalance. Now the steel companies need a transfusion, but who is there to give it to them? They will have to struggle out of their state of shock the best they can.

Harrieburg — Reporter's Notebook:

"Education Is No Frill . . . " — When Governor Scranton laid down his administration's blueprint for education in Pennsylvania this week, in three sentences he struck at the explosive basic point others for some reason have completely missed stressing.

The three sentences: "Let everyone clearly understand this harsh fact of life: Education is no frill or frapper for Pennsylvania. Education is a vital key to our very survival. Education is a major part of the answer to our dream of progress and prosperity."

Reaction so far generally has been favorable on the part of lawmakers but with many expressing reservations until they have completed "detailed study" — and gained some tone as to how their constituents back home feel about the proposals. . . . A number of Democratic anti-administration lawmakers grudgingly concede the program is a good one — but are miffed privately because it points up sharply some of the salient and critical areas missed by Act 561, the Democratic baby enacted during the past Democratic Lawrence Administration.

Curiously, it wasn't until the day before Mr. Scranton appeared before the joint House-Senate session that it was known whether he would appear in person or send his blueprint to the Legislature. . . . The extreme importance with which the Governor views the program finally swung the decision in favor of a personal appearance.

The True Sportsman! — The Pennsylvania Recreation and Sportsmen's Show held throughout the week here in the sprawling State Farm Show Building, failed to hold any outstanding lure for Fred Howard, a member of the across-the-river Cedar Cliff High School faculty.

The show recalled to Fred an incident that occurred not too long ago when he had a biology class on a field trip. . . . The class came to a stream loaded with fish — so loaded in fact that instructor Howard merely had to reach in the water with his hand to pull out a fish to show the class. . . . Less than a minute later the fish was back in the water, swimming away.

At that point a State Fish Warden tapped biology teacher Howard on the shoulder and charged the flabbergasted Cedar Cliff teacher with: (a) fishing without a license, and (b) use of illegal device — carrying a fine of $45. . . . In the showdown the illegal device charge was dropped but fish-plucker Howard did get fined $25 for fishing without a license! . . . Did Fred go to the sportsmen's show this week? . . . "Not on your life — I'm half afraid to look a fish in the gill now!"

Month of Holidays — For most of the 80,000-odd state payrolls, February is classified as one of those "good" months. . . . The reason: it has two holidays — one on Tuesday of this week (Lincoln's birthday) and one upcoming February 22 (Washington's birthday) — the latter on a Friday, thus giving state workers another one of those long weekends. . . . Additionally — it's the shortest work month of the year!

For many a payroller however this "holiday" thing has its worrisome side. . . . An increasing number of Democratic holdovers are receiving their pink dismissal slips entitling them to one of those "permanent holidays" which most of course knew would be coming, with the advent of a Republican administration but which many hopefully believe will be ignored in their particular case.

The "big switch" hasn't started yet — it's too early in the new administration, but the upheaval is beginning to leave. . . . This time though it's tuned primarily to pay periods (for book-keeping simplicity, among other things) with very few formal announcements being made from Capitol Hill of the patronage push-outs.

Off The Record

"Old soldiers never die, they just fade away." Gen. Douglas MacArthur offered these words to the U.S. Congress when the great military leader bowed out after being relieved of command by President Harry Truman during the mis-called Korean Conflict.

In an entirely different setting the other eve at the Penn Stroud Hotel, another great leader stepped down as president of the Community Chest Council. However, Clifford Gilliam's exit was amidst a tribute to a job well done.

Unlike the bitter-tasting MacArthur episode, Gilliam left the president's office with the applause of his closely-knit group ringing in his ears.

Gilliam, up official at the Inn, Buck Hill Falls, took over command of the Chest inner-council and turned an organization into a sure winner.

Happily for the Chest, Gilliam won't be fading away. He'll be around for a long time to lend a hand that spells success at every wave.

Gilliam is blessed with that MacArthur touch. The touch of a man who knows where he's going and what to do when he gets there. Thus you have a figure who rallies his forces together into a triumphant combination.

To be sure, Cliff was not alone in his venture. But neither was the Chest with Gilliam on their side.

The Community Chest did themselves proud this year under the leadership of campaign chairman Nelson Westbrook and Gilliam.

Raising in the highest total of money in the history of the organization, it was a far cry from the days when Gilliam did not fade away some 17 years ago.

Fortunately for you and yours we have the leaders the mold of Gilliam lending valuable assistance to regional projects that provide alms for those less fortunate.

Washington, February 15 — Senators probing the Soviet build-up in Cuba have gathered convincing evidence that there is a rising Communist guerrilla threat in Latin America, actively aided with money and arms from Cuba.

Detailed proof of this Cuban link was turned over to the Senate Armed Services Preparedness Subcommittee last week by Director John McCone, of the Central Intelligence Agency, and a reliable Cuban refugee group.

Both of their reports contend that the subversive activities of the Castro regime have greatly increased in Latin America since the apparent withdrawal of Soviet medium-range missiles from Cuba.

CIA Director McCone went the furthest in his warning. He startled the senators by reporting that these Cuban-supported guerrilla activities could develop into "a serious danger for the U. S., as well as a number of American republics, unless preventive measures are taken soon."

Latin American Sabotage Operating From Cuba

In his blunt testimony, McCone revealed that 1,500 saboteurs and Communist guerrillas were trained in Cuba during the past 12 months and are now at work in Latin America carrying out the Kremlin's orders for "protracted revolutionary action."

According to McCone, the immediate objectives of the Moscow-Havana axis is to cause wide-spread economic and political chaos throughout Latin America by terrorizing local officials, blowing up bridges, oil refineries, mines, and destroying all means of communication.

To learn the latest sabotage techniques, he reported, the local Communists are being trained and armed at two major guerrilla camps in Cuba. One is at Minas Del Rio in Oriente Province and another at La Campa in Las Villas.

The former is headed by Guatemala's ex-President Arbenz, and the latter by Spanish General Alberto Bayo, both members of the Revolutionary Command for Latin America that the Kremlin set up in Havana. This command directs all subversive and guerrilla activities from Cuba.

THE DETAILS — The intelligence information given Senator John Stennis, D-Miss., by a Cuban refugee group clearly demonstrates that the subversive activities of the Castro regime have increased since the October Cuban crisis.

Here is this group's country by country report:

Venezuela: On Oct. 27, 1962, four electric power stations were dynamited by native Communists, who were following orders from the Castro regime. As a consequence of this sabotage one-sixth of Venezuelan oil production was temporarily knocked out. The first radio signal ordering the sabotage was transmitted Oct. 24th from Havana via a ship off the isles of Curacao on the Venezuelan coast. On January 7, 1963, Venezuelan police discovered a secret Castro-Communist arms cache, 20 miles south of Caracas, and confiscated several tons of explosives and other weapons.

Peru: There have been serious guerrilla outbreaks in several places, notably in the ancient Inca capital off Cuzco, in Cajamarca, 250 miles north of Lima, and in Satipo, between Lima and Cuzco. An unusual feature of guerrilla activity in Peru is that the Castro-trained agents are going in for robbing banks — in the tradition of Stalin's famous "expropriations" of Tsarist banks — to obtain funds for guerrilla operations.

British Guiana: "Youthful followers of Communist Premier Cheddi Jagan are returning from Cuba trained for an expected guerrilla struggle."

Brazil: On December 27, 1962, Brazilian police dug up an arms cache outside of Sao Paulo. Inspector Alcides Bueno has evidence linking Castro-agents with these arms. Of Czech manufacture, the arms arrived aboard a Cuban ship and were transported to the Communist Peasants' League headquarters.

Costa Rica: Francisco J. Orlich, President of Costa Rica, has evidence linking Castro-Communist agents with the recent violence in Cartago. He forecasts increased subversive action in all Central America.

Ecuador: There have been several Indian uprisings in various parts of Ecuador in recent months which, though stemming from honest grievances, are being exploited by the Communists. Miguel Lechon, who heads the Ecuadorian Federation of Indians, has just returned from Cuba and threatened: "One day, more than 200,000 Indians will descend from the mountains to take over the land."

TURNING THE TABLES — The tables are being turned on two militant members of Congress in a very unusual way. Senator Kenneth Keating, R-N.Y., and Representative Donald C. Bruce, R-Ind., are under Defense Department "surveillance" for their highly critical disclosures of the ominous Soviet military build-up in Cuba. The two legislators have revealed a number of jolting facts and are on the trail of others equally sensational.

Keating and Bruce have been tipped off about this extraordinary undercover scrutiny. They view it as an effort to either block further embarrassing disclosures or to learn their source of information.

Adam Yarmolinsky, special assistant of Secretary McNamara, is in charge of the investigation. As a counter move, Keating has secured investigators of the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, of which he is a member, to keep an eye on his office and the activities of the Pentagon probes. The New Yorker also has changed the combination of his office safe and had his phones checked for possible taps.

Dieting's Do's, Don'ts

Occasionally persons will literally eat themselves to death because they let their emotions run away with them. Instead of finding sensible diversions for boredom, they reach for a box of candy or a between-meals snack. Instead of trying to learn to live with the pressures of their work, or face their personal problems intelligently they try to eat their way out. It won't work.

Reducing the quantity of food you eat is the only sensible, safe and sure way to take off excess weight not due to an organic dysfunction.

Before you start any weight-reducing campaign, there is one absolute rule you must keep in mind: You must change your attitudes toward eating as well as your habits of eating.

By change of attitude, I mean you must remember that your overweight resulted simply from too much food and that you cannot expect to make your weight loss permanent if you revert to your old eating habits later.

Actually, the amount of calories required by each of us varies. The mechanism of digestion, absorption, and utilization of food differs so much among individuals that no standard of calorie-intake for dieting can be reasonably established.

Start dieting simply by cutting down on the total amount of food you eat at each sitting. If your weight goes down at the rate of about one pound a week or five pounds a month you are doing very nicely. Keep it up. If your weight remains unchanged or you have gained weight, cut your food portions some more. Before long you will find the proper balance.

Remember that losing a pound a week is quite adequate. Too rapid a weight loss is not sensible.

Remember also that when your weight loss is too abrupt, your lose stamina, get fatigued easily, and may lower your resistance to infection.

Most of us can start the sensible dieting method outlined above without any health risk. However, if your weight is more than twenty-five per cent above normal, I urge you to see your doctor before launching a reducing routine.

Strenuous exercise while reducing may throw too large a burden onto the already overworked heart and serious damage may result. However, moderate exercise, such as walking, should do you a great deal of good.

Body massage won't help you lose weight. Its only benefit is to help you maintain muscle tone, which regular exercise takes care of anyway.

Dear Abby

Lady! Keep Looking

Dear Abby: I am a 62-year-old widow on the look-out for a second mate. How does a gal go about making herself attractive to a man six years her junior? Fancy clothes and new hair-dos don't work like they used to. He lives alone and I know he likes home cooking so I invite him to dinner at my home several times a week. He never takes me but says he enjoys my company. He likes his freedom and kidding says he'll never marry. I am just an average working girl. How can I convince him he can't live without me?

HUNGRY FOR LOVE

Dear Hungry: What makes you think he's kidding when he says he'll never marry? If you really want to find a second mate, don't waste your time and groceries on the likes of him.

Dear Abby: Our son married a terrible girl who has tried for years to turn him against his people. We love our son, Abby, and for that reason have tolerated it as long as we could. She has never made any big trouble between our son and us, but the cooling process is gradual and the gap is growing wider. We know our son loves us but is too weak to stand up to this woman. He has told us this in so many words. She is bringing up her children to hate us and to favor her parents. How can we change the situation?

Dear Best: Since there is no reason for your husband to get up at that hour, he should let you sleep. Tell your early bird that the worm has turned: And YOU turn over and crawl under the covers.

Confidential to S.C.: Patience, man. Never cut what you can untie.

Hate to write letters? Send one dollar to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif., for Abby's new booklet, "HOW TO WRITE LETTERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS."

Dear Left: The only person you can "change" the situation is your son. Since he, by his own admission, is "too weak to stand up to this woman," you will have to put up with it. Don't blame the girl entirely. Your son's spinelessness accounts for half the problem.

FUNERAL services for Franklin W. Fritch, 79, of Philadelphia, father of Mrs. Laura Setzer, East Stroudsburg RD 1, were held Wednesday at 1 p.m. in a Philadelphia funeral home. Burial was in the Forest Hill Cemetery, Philadelphia.

In addition to Mrs. Setzer, other children are Mrs. Evelyn Stillman, Glen Olden; Mrs. Edna Leeds, New Hyde Park, N. Y.; Mrs. Alma Fralick, New York City; Mr. S. Marion Treaca, Glen Olden; Franklin Fritch, Philadelphia.

Also, 15 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

Palibearers were Donald Setzer, Robert Setzer, William Stillman, Kenneth Fralick, Thomas Swag and Robert Treaca.

Former Resident Of Cherry Lane

LLOYD Eastwood Siebold who, with his wife, were for many years summer residents at Meadowbrook Manor, Cherry Lane, died on Feb. 5 in the Bryn Mawr hospital at the age of 72. His wife, the former Virginia Fisher, died last month.

During their years in the Poconos, Mr. Siebold was much in demand as a lecturer on all phases of interior decoration, poetry, dance and other artistic media.

At the time of his death, he was curator of the Valley Forge Museum of American History where he was noted for his creation of precise, miniature Colonial rooms, sealed one inch to the foot, covering periods from 1620 to 1830.

He was also director of the department of arts and decorations for J. E. Caldwell and Co., Philadelphia jewelers, and lived at Windermere Court in Wayne.

He was a veteran of World War I and was a member of the vestry of the Washington Memorial Chapel at Valley Forge where funeral services were held on Saturday.

Frank Hoagland's Rites Conducted

Unsafe Roads Eastburg Sewer Authority Ruling Set By Bangor Completes Bond Settlement

BANGOR — Donald B. Keat, superintendent of Bangor Area Schools, was authorized to close schools when three of the four bus contractors notify him that roads are unsafe to travel. The action was taken by the joint school committee at this week's meeting.

At the same time the committee reviewed the matter of the road hazards on the Bangor-East Bangor Highway near the open abandoned quarry holes. Upon the recommendation of Mrs. Charlotte Hough, the joint board instructed Secretary Merle W. Mabius to seek the assistance of Rep. Francis E. Walter in securing federal aid and cooperation.

In further reports on the road matter R. Kenneth Ace reported that Edmund Turzot, solicitor, had informed him that only one quarry owner, Charles Smith, of Bangor, had signed the releases necessary to correct the road conditions on quarry property. All others have failed to sign reject or return the release.

In other business the board accepted, with regret, the resignation of Mrs. Mildred Stoddard Osborne as a member of the faculty of the junior high school. Mrs. Osborne has been a teacher in the Bangor System for the past 37 years and gave her reason for retirement as that of poor health.

Merle W. Mabius, secretary, was granted permission to attend the meetings of the A.A.S.A. in Atlantic City, N.J. and the board approved the expenditure of some $265 to send interested teachers of the system to the reading conference at Lehigh on March 30.

The salary of Dr. R. W. Fritzsche, school medical inspector, was set at $1,500 for the year, a raise of about $300. Miss Helen Rocho was granted permission to attend a language conference in Philadelphia on April 27 and 28.

Dr. John W. Sabatine, elementary supervisor was granted permission to assist with the evaluation of the Whitehall Schools during the month of April. Keat, however, informed the board that Dr. Sabatine is currently a patient at the Eastern Hospital.

Miss Janice Kennedy was granted permission to present a three act play in the junior high school and the board approved the purchase of a floor cleaner at a cost of about $2,000.

Aid Comes To Fire Victims

MRS. HELEN Green, executive secretary Monroe Chapter American Red Cross, said yesterday that the response to the call for aid for the Calvary School family has been tremendous.

The Schoch home, Stroudsburg, RD 5, was completely gutted by fire Wednesday morning. The only articles saved were three children's sleds, a doll and clothing; members of the family were wearing.

Schoch has notified the Red Cross that he has not completed a list of articles needed and asked the Red Cross to hold all donations for about one week to enable him to complete his list.

The Daily Record learned yesterday that two former classmates of Mrs. Schoch spent the greater part of Wednesday contacting members of the class for donations. It is reported that Mrs. Dolores Decker and David Lee have made arrangements with fellow classmates for articles to be made available to the family.

Mayors Support PNG Drive

MAYORS Joseph Small, Thomas Kistler and Gerald Posingger yesterday called upon the citizens of Stroudsburg, East Stroudsburg and Mount Pocono to wholeheartedly support the "Operation Mustang 1963" recruiting drive of Company A, 1st Battle Group, 108th Inf. Regiment, 28th Division of the Pennsylvania National Guard.

The mayors signed a proclamation designating February 17 as National Guard Muster Day in the boroughs.

The drive is part of a nationwide campaign to maintain the strength of the Army National Guard at 400,000 officers and men, and the strength of the Air National Guard at 72,000.

The mayors said that while all indications are that the Guard today is the "most ready" it has ever been in its history, more young men are needed — both former servicemen as well as those with no prior military service — to fill many skilled jobs.

They pointed out that young men over 17 can get valuable Army or Air Force specialist training during their brief active duty training time and that most of a man's National Guard military service is performed with "the home town team."

The mayors stressed the fact that the National Guard rates support since it serves to hold down military costs and at the same time provides for a valuable relief force right in the community in the event of natural disasters such as floods, fires, and storms.

The mayors said they hoped young men would contact Co. A's commander, Lt. George P. Brodhead at the Armory, East Stroudsburg, to learn more details about National Guard service.

PUC Fines

HARRISBURG (AP)—The Public Utility Commission yesterday fined a Lancaster livestock trucker $1,000 for undercutting hauling rates.

The trucker, Oliver H. Sensenig, was directed to pay the penalty within 15 days and to stop cutting rates for hauling cattle, chiefly between the Union Stockyard in Lancaster and a dressed beef firm in Philadelphia.

Sensenig also was warned that further violations could result in revocation of his PUC hauling permit.

P-K Aide Retires After 43 Years

By Bobby Westbrook

RETIRING after 43 years as purchasing agent with the Patterson-Kelley Co., Horace G. Walters may find himself working longer hours for the community "for free" than he did for pay at his job.

But civic responsibilities can't catch up with him until the end of March, because he and Mrs. Walters are leaving today for Portugal and Spain where they will visit their daughter and her family at the Naval Air Base at Rota, Spain. This is their second trip to Spain and they plan to visit many of the sights they missed on the first trip as well as revisiting their favorite spots.

Both interested in history, they plan to go to Palos from which port Columbus sailed on his first voyage of discovery, as well as Alhambra, Granada, and Cadiz, dating back 3,000 years to the Phoenicians. They plan to return by ship.

They will take with them the camera which the firm presented to Walters on his retirement last Friday. At his own request, there was no fanfare on his retirement.

Walters has been with the company through its period of great growth. When he first went to work, he recalls, there were six office employees; today there are more than 100.

Walters is not afraid that time will hang heavy on his hands when he returns because he will return to many civic responsibilities. He was recently elected president of the board of directors of the Monroe County YMCA, he is president of the Recreation Board of East Stroudsburg; program chairman for the Monroe County Historical Society and of the Industrial Management Club in addition to his activities in church and other civic and club duties.

Election Study Group Urged

HARRISBURG — A resolution asking for a bipartisan commission to study Pennsylvania's elections and election laws was introduced in the House.

The proposal by Republican Reps. Morton H. Fetteroff Jr., Montgomery; Lee A. Donaldson Jr., Allegheny; William Edwards, Lackawanna, and Austin M. Lee, Philadelphia, called particularly for a study of poll watchers, selection of election boards, administration of voters registration and election, legal assistance to voters and absentee voting.

big doings...small space

See how cleverly Pennsylvania House provides a maximum of storage space and a maximum of seating space for smaller dining areas. But there's nothing "midget-sized" about these pieces; they just take up less floor space than some of our pieces made on a grander scale. Whatever the size of your dining area, you'll want to see the entire fabulous Pennsylvania House solid cherry collection. It's a wonderful feeling to own the finest!

Barrett Supervisors Okay Bills

CANADENSIS — Barrett Township Supervisors approved payment of $2,176.86 in current bills at a meeting last night.

The top output was $1,376 for cinders for use on 33.14 miles of roads in the township. The remainder of the bills covered repairs and equipment maintenance.

The supervisors received a letter from District Engineer Victor Cesare, Allentown, requesting that the Canadensis traffic light be a continual stop and go signal. Cesare deferred action pending an official study in July. Plans call for the use of the traffic signal on a stop-and-go system, starting in May.

A request from the Barrett Fire Company seeking clearance around the hydrants was discussed. The supervisors agreed that all precaution must be made to keep the hydrants free of snow and debris.

Monroe County's SPCA asked for four-cent per capita donation for aid in operating the shelter in Stroudsburg. It was tabled until budget time.

Monroe County's Police Reserve urged the supervisors to suggest members for the county-wide organization. Police Chief Harry Campbell supported the bid.

The fire company reported three calls to fires that totalled $16,000 in property damage in January.

The House Of The Week

A House That Is Truly With The Times

By JULES LOH

EVERYBODY has heard about today's ever increasing amount of leisure time, but how many are doing anything about it? In the design of their homes, that is.

Longer vacations notwithstanding, a family's own home still is the place where it spends nearly all its spare time. So to be in step with modern living, a home should provide for relaxing—formal entertaining, necessarily, but just sitting around with your shoes off—to the same extent it provides for other family necessities such as eating and sleeping.

In today's House of the Week, a modest three-bedroom ranch, architect Herbert W. Neumann has shown he clearly is in tune with the times. The house is design J-60 in the weekly series.

The emphasis is plainly on the family room, a spacious 17 feet 3 inches by 12 feet area built as a separate room—not an extension to the kitchen. Its key feature is a sturdy corner fireplace, which architect Neumann intended to be used. "If it was merely decorative," he said, "I would have put it in the living room." Even as a decorative fixture, which it surely is, it will be enjoyed more in the family room than in the less-used living room.

STURDY AND INFORMAL: This delightful three-bedroom ranch was designed for the modern family who likes to relax. A spacious family room is its noteworthy feature, plus covered porches in both front and rear. Exterior materials are brick veneer and wood shingles with vertical board accents.

A covered front loggia and a covered rear porch (which could be screened, or enclosed with shutters) are two more relaxing areas designed into the house. To complete the picture, a terrace for lounging and play could stretch across the entire rear width. It would be approachable from the porch, kitchen and family room through three separate entries.

The bedroom wing is a well-ordered layout of three rooms, two full baths and spacious closets. The master bedroom has two wall closets, one of them extra large, in addition to a walk-in closet. From the outside, the house is uncluttered and has a durable, early American tone with a pleasing blend of brick veneer, wood shingles and vertical siding accenting the porch area. Curved arches frame the living room picture window.

Not counting the garage and porch areas, the house contains 1,879 square feet of living area in over-all dimension of 76 feet 6 inches wide by 38 feet deep.

Additional Details
One outstanding feature of this house is the liberal use of glass, an asset especially in warmer climates.

The living room, kitchen-breakfast room, family room, dining room and two of the bedrooms have triple banks of windows, and the dining room has sliding glass doors leading to the porch. The large windows in the kitchen assure excellent backyard supervision as well as plenty of light and air. The rear bedroom and the master bedroom have double exposures—in fact, the master bedroom has triple exposure if you leave the bathroom door open.

While the emphasis is on informality in this house, the formal features are by no means neglected. The living room-dining room ell is a handsome expanse stretching well over 20 feet in both direction and overlooking both the front porch and the rear terrace, and flowing onto the rear porch.

The kitchen is designed with the housewife in mind; U-shaped work area with sink, refrigerator and stove all within easy reach, and plenty of counter space and cabinets. The breakfast area is completely out of the way of the work area, and both are removed from any traffic passing through.

Another well-designed feature is the family bathroom. It has two doors, which double its use-

Is Easy To Build

Backyard Privacy Partition

EVERYONE who enjoys the luxury of privacy and the insurance benefits inherent in having your property properly defined, want this unique fence. Since it can be built to any height, without being overbearing, it enhances the appearance of your home. Best of all, it provides complete privacy without blanketing off any breeze. As more people move to the suburbs, and raise children according to the progressive school, good fencing is important. It not only protects your lawn and shrubs from others, but also discourages unwarranted trespassing.

Those who enjoy the leisure of outdoor living find this privacy partition an ideal way to enclose a backyard dining area. Meals, entertaining and your children's play area can be kept a family affair. When built around a wading pool, sandbox or other play area, it helps keep energetic youngsters where they belong!

When attached to one end of your house or garage, it tends to make a small house appear much larger while it provides an excellent background for flowers and shrubs. In winter it acts as a snow fence and windbreak. The pattern offered below tells what materials to buy, how to lay out and assemble the fence. No special skill or tools are required.

Send 50 cents in check, coin or money order for Privacy Partition Fence Pattern No. 937 to Name of Newspaper, P. O. Box 215, Pleasantville, New York. Send 50 cents additional for new catalog illustrating over 300 other build it yourself projects and home improvement books. Add 25 cents if you wish pattern sent by Special Handling.

10 Ways To Make Painting Easier

TO MAKE your next painting job the easiest decorating project you've ever done, here are ten suggestions from the National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association.

1. First of all, be sure to use quality paint—the best you can buy—because quality paint will hide the old surface better and make the need for two coats less likely. Quality paint will hold its color better and give you a longer satisfying and longer lasting job.

2. Remove the hardware from doors and cabinets and loosen wall or ceiling electric fixtures. This way you won't have to slow down your painting to avoid getting smeared on the metal.

3. Instead of trying to match the color of your wall paints exactly with drapery or upholstery fabrics, select variations of the latter colors which will harmonize with them. The difference in texture between flat walls and cloth makes each reflect light differently so that an exact color match is virtually impossible.

4. If you select a light color for your walls, why not paint the ceiling the same color? In this way you won't have the problem of keeping the ceiling paint off the walls and vice versa.

5. Use the largest roller or brush you can wield without tiring your arm. This will speed the job because more paint will be deposited with each stroke.

6. Use a roller of the proper width to paint or enamel your baseboard. This will reduce the time you have to kneel to a minimum. Protect the wall and floor with shirt cardboards or a metal shield available at your paint dealer's.

7. Enamel the woodwork with semi-gloss or gloss enamel before applying the flat paint, latex or alkyd, to the walls. It's easier to remove flat paint from thoroughly dried enamel, in case your hand should slip, than it is to remove enamel from flat paint.

8. Don't worry too much if some paint splatters on the panes when you are doing the wooden members of a window frame. This may happen even if you use the correct brush, an angular-cut type known as a sash tool. Wait until the paint has dried and scrape it off with a carefully held razor blade.

9. You'll find it easier to paint the ceiling if you place a one and one-half-inch plank at the proper height securely on the treads of two solidly-footed, completely opened step ladders. This eliminates climbing up and down, up and down, again and again.

10. Even easier is to use a long-handled roller which permits you to paint the ceiling while standing on the floor. You may have to use a ladder only to cut in the edges.

EXPANDABLE homes make a lot of sense for young marrieds because the home can grow as the family—and the budget—grows. For more economical expansion, however, provision should be made at the start for heating the upstairs or an extra room that will be finished later, caution furnace engineers.

Be sure to have heating ducts roughed in for the unfinished areas of the home. You'll also want to install a furnace large enough to handle the extra rooms.

By planning ahead now, you can save yourself money and inconvenience when it comes time to add that extra space.

THE plumbing industry advises that dripping faucets should be fixed promptly to prevent permanent damage.

Decorations of the room also will be due for a change. Besides making the color scheme more sophisticated, fabrics and wall coverings with childish prints should be replaced by more adult designs. Carpeting and rugs can be substituted for the easy-to-clean linoleum or tile floor that was necessary when the child was younger.

A Room A Child Will Like

HAS YOUR child outgrown his room? Is he always playing in other parts of your home? If you haven't updated your boy's or girl's room in the past two years, it's no wonder you're always finding toys and playthings underfoot all over the house.

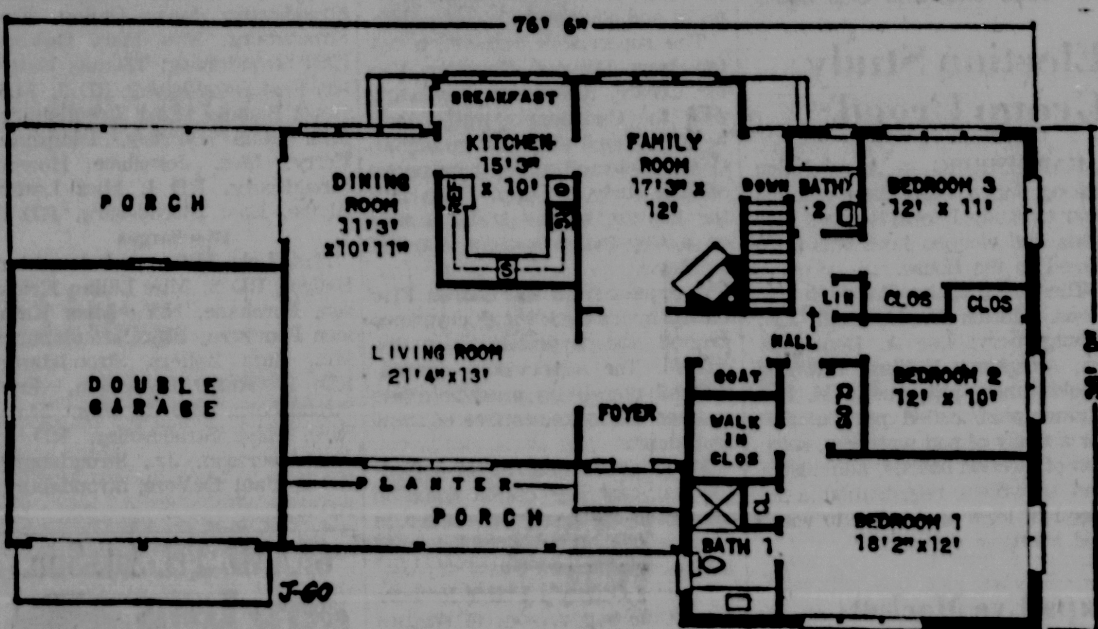

Psychologists recommend that a child's room have flexible facilities that can be updated regularly to keep pace with his growth, according to the American Home Improvement Institute, national clearing house for design and building information.

One of the most practical elements in the room is storage space. The Institute suggests a storage wall unit with drawers that have stops so they can't be pulled out accidentally and shelves that can be adjusted to varying heights as the child grows older. Colorful knobs on bins and drawers can be changed over the years to help give the room a look of maturity.

A low play table for the tot can later be used by the teen as a dressing table or homework desk. If its height is adjustable, the table can be built into the wall unit in place of a shelf or a flush door can be placed between two dressers on adjustable brackets. Adjustable closet rods also provide flexibility.

Another important element is separation of activity areas. Play and sleeping areas should be separated with a room divider of Panelaire filigree that limits visibility and provides privacy, especially if the room is shared by two or more children. A non-permanent divider can be made with spring plungers at the top so it can be moved later if you change the furniture arrangement.

Decorations of the room also will be due for a change. Besides making the color scheme more sophisticated, fabrics and

FLOOR PLAN: Note the liberal use of glass—Large windows in all the rooms, and sliding glass doors in the dining room leading to the porch. Double entry to main bathroom makes it accessible to kitchen, family room and backyard as well as the bedrooms. Master bedroom has its own bathroom with shower.

By ANDY LANG

NO MATTER how many power tools are in your home workshop, there is always a need for the old reliable hand tools, such as the hammer, screwdriver, pliers, etc. Oddly enough, many persons who have become proficient in the use of electric machines in recent years have no parallel skill in the use of hand tools.

Here are some tips about handling the nonpower equipment in your shop:

Use only a wrist movement in driving a small nail with a hammer, bending the elbow for larger nails and striking hard with full-arm action for very large nails.

In using a chisel, keep the left hand (if you are right-handed) behind the cutting edge at all times.

Remember that it is easier and quicker to make several thin cuts with a chisel than one thick one, in addition to insuring a more professional result.

In making a hole in wood with an awl, the edge of the tool should be pushed into the wood across the grain, as there is a possibility of splitting the stock if this is done along the grain.

On the other hand, the clenching of nails into wood should always be along the grain, since this adds strength to the fastening.

In cutting with a hacksaw, be sure that the work is held firmly in a vise, that the blade is held lightly in its frame and that you remember the principle that the cutting is done on the forward stroke.

The cutting also is done on the forward stroke when filing, so be sure no pressure is exerted in drawing back the file.

Old screwdrivers can be renewed by grinding the tips, but be certain the grinding is done straight across so that the tips will fit firmly into the heads of screws.

Attaching a piece of tempered hardboard to the top of your workbench will insure an excellent working surface that will resist dents and other marks. Screw the hardboard into the workbench top so that, if necessary, it can be removed and replaced at a later date, although this is unlikely to occur for several years.

BEAT THE COLD
IF YOUR radiators are painted silver or gold, they will not give off as much heat as they would had a flat wall paint been used.

If your rooms are chilly, don't wait until your next painting job to remedy the situation. Your paint dealer will be able to match the wall color closely and you can increase the heat output by painting the radiators now, the National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association suggests. Pick a day when you can turn the heat off for a time because radiators should be cold when painted. To keep the waiting time to a minimum, use a latex paint which will dry in an hour or less.

Decorations of the room also will be due for a change. Besides making the color scheme more sophisticated, fabrics and wall coverings with childish prints should be replaced by more adult designs. Carpeting and rugs can be substituted for the easy-to-clean linoleum or tile floor that was necessary when the child was younger.

THE plumbing industry advises that dripping faucets should be fixed promptly to prevent permanent damage.

Horizontal Heating Units Save Space

IF YOU ARE about to modernize your home heating system with a new furnace and are fighting space problems, a gas or oil-fired horizontal unit might be the answer.

Horizontal warm air furnaces available today require no valuable floor space, point out furnace application engineers.

Depending on the design of your house, these furnaces can be suspended from the basement rafters, hung from the ceiling in a utility room, or placed on a solid base in crawl space, attic, or loft.

Two simple steps will add central air conditioning to this type of system. All that's required is installation of an evaporator coil in the heating ductwork and a compressor-condenser unit outdoors.

Prints Put On Display In Eastburg

PRINTS of famous paintings that have been displayed recently in both branches of the Monroe Security Bank & Trust Co. yesterday were hung in the main hall of the East Stroudsburg High School. They will be on exhibition there the rest of February.

This showing is sponsored by the Pocono Art Center. It is the beginning of a plan to arrange yearly exhibitions of reproductions of paintings of international renown, which are to be available for loan to show in every school in Monroe County.

The Monroe Security Bank & Trust Co. donated the funds to make possible this service to the school children of the community.

The pictures fall into three groups. There are five floral paintings: Ouzanne's "Flowers and Fruit;" Redon's "Vase of Flowers;" Jan Breughel's "Flowers in Blue Vase;" Renoir's "Spring Flowers;" and a Chinese Ming Dynasty "Basket Filled with Flowers."

Five Landscapes Also are five landscapes, including Peter Breughel the Elder's "The Harvesters;" Ruissdael's "Wheatfields;" Dean Faucett's "Midsummer;" and two by George Innes, "Autumn Oaks" and "Lackawanna Valley."

Two paintings of the Flemish school are represented, Vermeer's "Lady Standing at the Virginals," and Jan Van Eyck's "The Marriage of Arnolfini and Cenami." Schools or P.T.A. groups wishing to arrange for the loan of these prints should contact the Pocono Art Center by phoning 421-5988.

GOP Groups Are Named By Kresge

HAROLD B. Kresge of Tobyhanna, named by the administration of Gov. William Scranton as liaison officer between Harrisburg and the Monroe County Republican Party, this week appointed three committees to further party affairs and said he will not stand in the way of any candidate seeking nomination for office in the May primary election.

The committees include: Public relations—Sam Saunders, Stroudsburg, chairman; Jack Smiley and Mrs. Ruth Slutter, both of Pocono Township, and Mrs. Barbara Drake, Delaware Water Gap. Each member will select one more person of his or her choice to assist.

Registration — William Quinn, Eastern Tobyhanna Township, chairman; Ray Tarr and Richard Davis, both of Stroudsburg, and Mrs. Slutter.

Research — Dr. C. W. Dupes, East Stroudsburg, chairman; Davis, vice chairman, and Ray Roberts and Atty. Phillip Williams, both of Stroudsburg.

Kresge said his prime interest in candidates is that they be well qualified and interested in better government.

"There are a lot of well qualified persons who hold back because they are afraid of political machinery," he said. "I am willing to answer questions and give advice to anyone who is interested in seeking any public office. I will not stand in the way of any candidate."

He added that he will not endorse any candidate for the primary.

Area Church Will Be 120 Years Old

THE Beakleyville Baptist Church on Analomink Rd., East Stroudsburg, will be 120 years old on Friday. No special service or celebration is planned to mark the anniversary.

The church was organized on Feb. 15, 1843, with a membership of 20 persons. Three years prior to that date, an evangelist by the name of Rev. Beakley held special meetings in a barn on property now owned by Miss Myrtle Angle, which was then owned by her father.

The land for the present church was donated by Carrick Van Vliet. Rev. Wiley S. Young is the present pastor. In the year that he has served, 17 new members have joined the church, 16 of them baptized by immersion and one joining by letter.

East Bangor Lions Card Heart Drive

EAST BANGOR — The East Bangor Lions Club will again sponsor a Heart Fund drive in the borough, a spokesman for the club said last night.

Plans for the drive were completed at the recent meeting of the club. The action was taken following a talk by Ralph Lockard, international counselor. Following the meeting luncheon was served.

Shawnee Choir Will Sing At National Conference

Dr. Earl Willhite, director of the Shawnee Choir, yesterday announced that the choir would appear on the program of the Music Educators National Conference in Atlantic City on Monday afternoon, March 4.

Dr. Frances Andrews, president of the Eastern Division of the MENC, extended the invitation. The Shawnee Choir was selected in a recorded audition of some of the finest choral groups in the 11 states and the District of Columbia which make up the Eastern Division.

The choir was chosen to sing at the "Music in the Community" session which is concerned with musical performance opportunities for people outside the school music programs.

The March 4th program will mark the third time in the past 18 months that Shawnee Choir has sung at major music teachers conventions. Last December, they sang for the New

Crusade At Baptist Church

The Crusade For Christ progresses at the First Baptist Church of East Stroudsburg under the direction of Rev. Philip R. Licalci. Attendances have been high despite weather conditions, officials said. Several special features are arranged for the closing days.

An emphasis upon youth interest and need will continue in each service the evangelist uses magic to emphasize his message to boys and girls.

By special request a "Parents Conference" has been scheduled for tonight at 9:30 (after the service). An additional service for Saturday at 8 p.m. is scheduled in which the Youth For Christ will be guests of the church.

The sermon for the youth will be "High Priced Haircut." A "Youth Confab" will be held on Sunday at 6 p.m., opening with a light refreshment supper and followed by a question and answer period. The Evangelist and the pastor will be the only adults attending this meeting.

The closing meeting on Sunday at 8 p.m. will be a time for making awards previously announced. The sermon for the occasion will be "Someone Is At Your Door."

York State MENC convention, and a year ago last December for the Pennsylvania MENC convention in Harrisburg.

Organized in 1955 by Shawnee Press, music publishing division of the Fred Waring organization, the choir has been making recordings of Shawnee Press choral music for eight years.

The record albums produced have been offered to choral directors on loan at no charge. The Shawnee Press Reference Recording Service thus makes it easier and more efficient for directors to select new music and teach it to their choirs.

The unique attributes of the Shawnee Choir that stimulated the invitation to the Atlantic City Convention are the high standards of performance they strive for and the fact that everyone in the Choir works at some other activity to earn a living. That is, it is a non-professional group. The employment situation, of course, makes a Monday afternoon program, out-of-town, difficult to arrange.

Fine Spirit In talking about this, Dr. Willhite said, "The fine spirit of cooperation on the part of the families and employers of the singers in the Shawnee Choir is deeply appreciated. Without the understanding help of the wives, husbands, business firms and school administrators concerned, we just couldn't do it."

"The Shawnee Choir," he said, "will be representing the Pocono Mountains area at Atlantic City, and the kind of 100% support we have received here at home will certainly add to our determination to do our very best. We are trying now to arrange a concert for our friends and neighbors here in the Stroudsburgs prior to the March 4th trip, as a way of saying thank you for all their help. The time and place will be announced as soon as possible."

Just Between Us—

Come out, come out, whoever you are! I just got the biggest guess—who Valentine of a lifetime. Heading for home after a big night with Community Chest meeting added to the routine chores, I was resigned to the fact that I'd probably have to batter my way through the dam of snow that the snowplows always leave across driveways.

In fact, since I hadn't been home since the snow storm, I might have trouble getting the car off the road, but I was willing to give it the old try. So at the accustomed spot in the road, I put it in low, gathered up speed and swung into the driveway full tilt—and in my surprise almost ran the car up the apple tree that stands on the point where the driveway divides. Because, instead of the narrow surprised at the kindness of people. The Valentine mailbox brought a number of happy surprises, including one wishing me more birds and less skunks which was cute.

But remember how I'm always finding excuses for procrastinating about chores I don't like to do? Well, I've got a brand new excuse for not cleaning bureau drawers. It's too dangerous. While everybody was worrying about icy sidewalks and stuff, Peg Shull was making like a busy little housewife, cleaning out bureau drawers—and just like that slipped and broke her right arm. And a very painful and uncomfortable break it is, too, and not exactly what she'd planned to take with her on that vacation that's coming up soon. Speaking of vacations, I hear little run of a track I had expected, there stretched the driveway, wide and beautiful and bare, lined on either side by waist high banks of snow that shone like marble.

In fact, I wonder whether the Pearly Gates, provided I ever get a chance to see them, would look any more beautiful to me. Sometime, since I'd last been home, someone had ploughed out the whole quarter mile of driveway, and I'd be mighty proud to know which one of you was so thoughtful and kind. And who has a heart as big as a snow-plow? In fact I'm continually being that the Marty Baldwins are having a gala time. They only got in two rounds of golf at Pinehurst since it was pretty cool. The Bill Doals from Bangor were there and armed with insulated underwear, played 36 holes every day. Marty got sunburned the first day in Florida but I'm not wasting any sympathy on anybody able to get sunburned these February days.

However, I'm not wasting any sympathy on myself either. All I have to do is go look at that big beautiful driveway and count my blessings.

Let's talk Fashion
We've known women who deliberately buy a dress—an expensive one they really love—a size too small as an incentive for staying on their diets. We don't necessarily recommend that, but we would recommend a spring tonic stopping in to see our cruise clothes.

So maybe you're not going on a cruise and from the sound of the weather forecasts will be wearing your woollens well into July—we still think it's a good idea to have at least one new Spring outfit hanging in your closet—or better yet right out in plain view where it will remind you of singing birds, budding trees and you as the Queen of the May.

There's no logical reason for it but cruise clothes do seem to have a special dash that the wholesale arrivals of late Spring seem to lack. Maybe some of the enthusiasm of the manufacturers in their new designs is the spark that makes them so special with none of the picked-over, I've-done-this-before routine that comes with full Summer.

So do come in and we'll get Spring fever together.

Work Problems That Worry Readers Inspire Answers To Their Questions

By Roberta Fleming Roesch

Question: Sometimes I hear people say you should never settle for anything less than what you really want when you're out for a job.

Now I'd like to know whether or not you believe that holding out for just what you want—even though you don't get a nibble at it for months—is the right way to go about job hunting?

B.M. Answer: From a realistic standpoint and from experience, I don't believe that holding out for exactly what you want is necessarily the only rule to follow and the only right rule for everyone.

More Loss Than Gain If, for instance, you hold out because you want five dollars a week more in your salary, it often works out that the money you lose in the weeks you don't have a job puts you a lot further behind in the long run, both in total salary and total experience, than if you'd compromised a little just to get started at a job.

In most cases, I'm all for getting your foot in the door and getting a desk to sit behind because, once you've done this, you're in a spot to get to know the procedures and the people leading to the job you want.

Question: I'm 45 years old and just starting back to work after being a housewife for 20 years. Right now I'm pigeon-holed in a very small, unimportant job where I'm as near nothing as I could be. My ego is at an all-time low, but I wouldn't want to admit this to my family or friends.

I think this is happening because I find myself getting jealous and envious of the people around me who are so much more successful than I am. The other women in the office my age, and even ten years younger, are obviously so much more successful that I feel more inferior every day.

What can I do? Answer: Face the fact that if these women have been working during the years you've been home, they're naturally going to be ahead of you. This is reality!

Poconos Legion Aux.
Mt. Pocono — Poconos Memorial Unit 903 American Legion auxiliary will meet Monday night at the home of Mrs. John Sutton, Pocono Road. Mrs. Sutton will conduct the meeting and Mrs. Walter Schryder will be the hostess.

Washington Tea Monday For DAR

The annual Washington Tea of the Jacob Stroud Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution will be held Monday at 2 p.m. at the Stroud Community House and will feature a program of "A House for the Aged" given by Mrs. Madelyn Maloney.

She will tell the story of the White House as seen through the eyes of some of the men and women who have occupied it based on many books about the Presidents and their wives, including Nanette Kutner's "White House Saga" and "The White House ... Yesterday and Today," compiled by a Washington correspondent assigned to the White House.

Mrs. Maloney, a native of Stroudsburg, began giving readings and dramatizations when she lived in Schenectady, N. Y. and entered radio work as a PTA president. Returning to Stroudsburg 12 years ago, she writes the daily newspaper column "The Wyckoff Shopper" and presents a radio program of the same name.

Mrs. Jack Counterman presided at the business meeting. Canceled postage stamps were collected for the Volunteers of the Methodist Hospital in Philadelphia who sell them to buy equipment for the hospital. Plans were made for an auction sale to benefit the building fund with June 8 as the tentative date.

Members were also asked to begin making articles for the Ingathering to be held in March. Refreshments were served from a Valentine table by Mrs. Cron.

Algeria Facing Realities Now

(Editors Note: This is the first of two articles on the economic and political outlook for Algeria, written by David B. Ottaway, who is writing for the United Press International in Algiers.)

ALGIERS—American Ambassador to Algeria William J. Porter was in Washington recently to report on this country's first seven months of independence, and discuss details of the recently proposed U.S. aid program.

The ambassador and Premier Ahmed Ben Bella concluded a general agreement here Jan. 17 on the nature of American aid to Algeria. It was decided that the United States would center its efforts on rural reconstruction and development, providing primarily technical assistance and supplies to a "food for wages" program.

The ambassador is presumed to have discussed with State Department officials the role of the Peace Corps here as well as American assistance for the development of far farming in the vast Sahara desert.

With the exodus of French technicians from the country, the Algerian government is finding it self hard put to keep tractors going, or assist effectively in the direction of thousands of abandoned French farms. In this respect, Peace Corps technical and mechanical aid could play a crucial role here.

Since the establishment of a government, and Premier Ben Bella's boisterous trip to Cuba, most Western observers believe the young regime has become a good deal more sober about economic and political realities of life.

U. S. Aid
So far, only France and the United States have offered substantial assistance to help lead the country back to economic health.

Aid from the Eastern bloc has been limited to 500 Yugoslavian tractors, Bulgarian, Polish and Yugoslavian doctors, Russian and Chinese medical and food supplies and numerous student scholarships.

With the new year, Algeria began the first stage of her budgetary independence from France under an extreme austerity program. It is based around the 500 million dollars that Algerian finance experts estimate as the best possible for 1963 revenue returns.

So far, only a first quarter's budget of 140 million dollars has been approved by the National Assembly.

The French government recently agreed to provide about 200 million dollars to Algeria during 1963. It is pledged by the Evian Agreements of last March to give at least 210 million dollars yearly for the first three of the country's independence.

Most of this money, however, is destined for the "equipment" budget and public development of light and heavy industry.

First calculations of regular government expenses ran as high as 1.4 billion dollars. However, Finance Minister Ahmed Fancis is determined to hold back government spending to no more than 500 million.

He has decided to transfer some of the heaviest expenses to the special 300 million dollar "equipment" budget. The money here will come from French grants, oil royalties and other foreign aid.

In addition to industry, the funds would cover the cost of reconstructing some 8,000 villages, wiped out by the French military during seven years of war.

Want Good Feelings
In the past three months, it has become increasingly evident that Ben Bella's regime is anxious to remain on good terms with the Common Market countries and the United States.

Algerian officials, both privately and publicly, have emphasized recently that a private sector is destined to play an important part in the economic revival of the country. Although the government continued to increase the central government's authority over areas controlled for months after independence by local guerrilla forces.

It has also said that it wants to hold a certain percentage of these companies' stock. The National Assembly is due to discuss and vote the country's code of investment in its February session.

Besides the country's economic problems, Ambassador Porter undoubtedly discussed in detail political developments here.

The Ben Bella regime allowed just two months existence to the small but vocal Algerian Communist Party. Dedicated to its revolutionary policy of a single party system, the government prohibited the ACP, less for ideological reasons, it said, than political.

However, the government has made it equally clear that Marxist socialism has no future in Algeria.

Premier Ben Bella has also con-

Army Seeks 'Copter Applicants

S-Sgt. Michael Pavlovic, local Army recruiter, yesterday announced that the Army is seeking qualified applicants for the new Helicopter Training Program.

Applicants that can qualify will be appointed as warrant officers upon completion of the training.

The course consists of 40 weeks training and is broken down into three phases. The first phase is 16 weeks and is devoted to primary training.

Phase two is 14 weeks long and is devoted to transitional advanced contact and tactics. The last phase is 10 weeks and includes instrument flying.

Some of the requirements pointed out by Sgt. Pavlovic are applicants must be a high school graduate, between 18 and 30 years of age, and successfully pass a flight type physical examination.

Interested persons desiring more information may contact Sgt. Pavlovic at the Army Recruiting Station in the Stroudsburg Post Office.

Sgt. Pavlovic also announced that he will be in the office every Wednesday from 6:30 to 9 p.m. for the benefit of anyone who cannot go to the recruiting office during normal working hours.

Honeymoons For Lucky Show-Goers

POCONO Honeymoon Resorts Association has announced that each of their seven member resorts will give away a one week honeymoon at the Philadelphia Travel & Vacation Show as a special event to highlight their exhibit.

Participating in the program are Birchwood, Cove Haven, Honeymoon Haven, Paradise Valley, Penn Hills, Pocono Gardens and Strickland's.

Celebrities from the entertainment world will draw the lucky winners one each day during the last seven days of the show.

The Philadelphia Travel & Vacation Show will be held at Philadelphia Convention Hall April 19-23 and will include exhibits from the U.S. and abroad. There will be a 90-minute entertainment program twice daily with top quality performers actually representing Foreign and U.S. resort sites. This will be the largest Travel-Vacationland assemblage ever seen under one roof in its locale.

ESSC Gains 6th Mat Win

MANSFIELD—Coach Clyde Witman's East Stroudsburg State College's wrestling team last night gained their sixth victory of the season here, scoring an easy 31-5 verdict over Mansfield State.

Warrior Mermen Toppled

LONG ISLAND, N.Y. — East Stroudsburg State College's swimming team suffered their first defeat of the season here yesterday as Long Island University's mermen gained a 49-46 verdict over the Warriors.

The ESSC swimmers gained only four first-place finishes — two of them turned in by Rick Lobs who claimed honors in the individual medley and the 200-yard breaststroke events. Lobs went the distance in the medley event in 2:29.2, and swam the 200-yard breaststroke in 2:46.7.

Jake Jacobi finished first in the diving event with 60.15 points, while East Stroudsburg's Steve Roethke took the honors in the 200-yard backstroke with a winning time of 2:31.

Warrior mermen who gained second-place finishes were Tony Taggart (200-yard freestyle and 500-yard freestyle), Dick Westervelt (50-yard freestyle), Byron Spidel (100-yard freestyle) and Charley Stewart (200-yard backstroke).

The defeat marked the first in five starts for East Stroudsburg.

400 medley relay—Long Island (Krohn), DeSimone, Wernigen, Roethke, 4:25.3.
200 freestyle—Langton (LIT), Taggart (E), Livingston (LIT), 2:12.5.
50 freestyle—Wernigen (LIT), Westervelt (E), Spidel (E), 2:26.3.

Undeclared In Eight Bouts

Guzzo Proves Sensation In Warrior Mat Picture

UNDEFEATED in eight straight wrestling matches, Robert Guzzo is proving to be a 130-pound sensation at East Stroudsburg State College.

A graduate of Wilson Boro

Bob Guzzo, the Warriors' brilliant 130-pound flash, remained undefeated as he chalked up his eighth straight triumph of the season, scoring a decisive 8-0 decision over Lee Foster.

Five ESSC grapplers turned in pins for the triumph. They were recorded by Gene Good (123), John Hopkins (147), Bud Lawrence (157), Dick Bell (167) and Bill Clancy (177).

Washburn Wins
In addition to Guzzo, East Stroudsburg's heavyweight Tom Washburn also turned in a decision, a 5-2 verdict.

The victory put the Warriors at a 6-3-1 mark for the season. Only Mansfield's Ron Cole was able to gain a win in the match as he pinned Jerry Prentiss in two minutes with a double arm bar.

Clancy turned in the fastest fall of the night, pinning Mansfield's Leon Villani with a cradle in 35 seconds.

The triumph also assured the Warriors of a winning season. They only have two matches remaining—against Ithaca on Feb. 23, and West Chester Feb. 27.

123—Gene Good (E) pinned Tom Sullivan, half nelson body press, 4:52.
129—Bob Guzzo (E) defeated Lee Foster, 8-0.
137—Ron Cole (M) pinned Jerry Prentiss, 2-00, double arm bar.
147—John Hopkins (E) pinned Ron Clark, reverse nelson body press, 5:58.
157—Bud Lawrence (E) pinned Tom Hartman, half nelson body press, 5:58.
167—Dick Bell (E) pinned Walt Kahle, 7-45, cradle.
177—Bill Clancy (E) pinned Leon Villani, cradle, 0:35.
By—Tom Washburn (E) defeated John Smith, 5-2.

Darby Rams Sound More Like Yankees

HARRISBURG (AP)—The Darby Rams are beginning to sound more and more like the New York Yankees of the scholastic basketball world in Pennsylvania.

They win like the Yankees, and most of all, they react like the Yankees—proud but unemotional over their successes.

"Nothing but professional" commented one veteran sports writer who has been following the victorious Rams through the years.

No Emotion

Take the Ram dressing room last year for example, when Darby downed Mercer 51-42 for its first Class B state championship in history.

"There was no more emotion in that locker room than after a practice session," the sports writer said. "No shouting, no singing, just some small talk."

In fact, he went on, one of the sophomore managers got a reputation from the players for pounding on a locker in jubilation.

This season is no different. The Rams keep on winning—just like the Yankees. Darby last lost on March 14, 1961, to Kutztown, 59-47. Since then the Rams have strung together 42 straight victories.

Calls It "Awesome"

"Awesome" is the way former Media High School basketball coach Eddie Derrick describes it. Indeed it is. Until this week, the Rams were averaging some 70-75 points a game and event went over the hundred mark once.

Yeadon held the Rams to a 42-33 victory Tuesday night, but the winners were without the services of Dave Kennard, one of their star players.

Coach Hal Blitman is the one who made the Rams so much like the Yankees.

He took his team aside early in the 1961-62 season and told them it was "silly" to give pep talks before each game.

"You have the talent to go all the way," he said.

And so Darby did. Now they hold the state's unofficial record for consecutive victories. Once more, there doesn't seem to be anyone who can stop the Rams, at least not in their area. Prospect are better than ever that the Rams will be in the Class B final again this year.

Highly Successful

Blitman has been a highly successful coach for the District 1 powerhouse. In 4½ years he has won 99 and lost 15, for three district championships and one state title.

His big gun this year is 5-11 Charles (Pete) Coleman, one of four holdovers from last year's squad and a member of The Associated Press All-State Team.

Coleman has scored 411 points for the Rams this year. So impressed was Jack Kraft, head coach of the Villanova Wildcats, that he said earlier this year Coleman could play for Villanova right then.

Other first team members are 6-8 Harold Booker, 6-3 Adrian Harmon, 5-11 James Reaser and Kennard. So confident are the sports fans of the Darby area now they're even talking about challenging Uniontown, the state's Class A defending champion, to a game. The Red Raiders have 33 straight victories, including 17 this year, and also seem headed for a second straight title.

What a game if the two could meet!

White Sox Helped By Trades: Lopez

(17th of a series of 1963 team prospects, written under the manager's own byline).

By AL LOPEZ
Chicago White Sox

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—We've got a first division club and if some of the fellows who had bad years in 1962 show a form reversal the White Sox could be in the thick of the American League pennant race next season.

Our trade with Baltimore in which we gave up two fine players in Luis Aparicio and Al Smith has accomplished three things for us. First, it gave us a third baseman in Pete Ward. Second, we added much needed power with the acquisition of Ward. Ron Hansen and outfielder Dave Nicholson. Third, we strengthened our bullpen with Hoyt Wilhelm.

The Key Man

We needed a cleanup hitter and third baseman. Those were our big problems. From what I hear about Ward, he should be our third baseman this year and possibly our cleanup hitter. As far as we're concerned, Ward was the key man in the deal.

The youngster played at Rochester last year where he batted .328, hit 22 home runs and drove in 89 runs. He had the second highest batting average in the International League.

Rochester played Ward in the outfield but only because the Orioles had a great third baseman in Brooks Robinson. Pete, however, will have to win the third base job from Charlie Smith and others. I still haven't given up on Smith. I'm not convinced he isn't better than he showed last year.

Burford Has Chance

Don Burford, a kid from the University of Southern California, also will get a shot at the job. He's a switch hitter who reminds you an awful lot of Floyd Robinson. Les Moss, who managed him in the Venezuelan League this winter, claims the kid could make our club.

Hansen will do a good job for us at shortstop. You can throw out that 173 mark of his last year because nobody can be a soldier in the daytime and play ball at night. Aparicio is a great shortstop and wonderful runner but Hansen is pretty good defensively, too, and he will offset Luis' speed with his power. He hit 22 home runs in 1960 when he was the rookie of the year.

Nicholson is young and could still develop. I know he has the power. It's just a question of learning the strike zone with him. Wilhelm is going to be tremendously important to us. He's the stopper we needed so badly in the bullpen.

Wilhelm's age, 39, means nothing. He'll be able to throw that knuckler of his when he's in a rocking chair. He was 7-10 last year with 13 aces and a 1.94 earned run average.

We would have finished a lot higher last year if Aparicio, Jim Landis and Juan Pizarro had better years. I look for Landis and Pizarro to do much better next season. Both are young with great ability. I also expect Mike Hershberger to develop into a top flight outfielder. This could be the year when Robinson puts everything together. He could be one of the top stars in the game.

Better Pitching

I expect our pitching to be better and I look for some of the youngsters to push some of our starters of last year, Ray Herbert, John Buzhardt, Frank Baumgardner, Joe Horlen, Eddie Fisher, Don Zanni and Pizarro. I liked what little I saw of Dave DeBuschere, the young 6-6 right-hander who won 10 of 11 at Savannah coming right out of Detroit University.

S-U Lassies

Trimmed By Slatington

SLATINGTON — Fouls proved costly to the Mountaineers of Stroud Union who went down to a 33-28 defeat at the hands of Slatington here yesterday in a girls basketball game.

The Stroud Union lassies committed 30 fouls in the contest, which allowed Slatington to sink 13 of 31 attempts. Stroud Union outscored the Slatinites by a 12-10 margin on field goals.

Stroud Union took a 7-2 lead at the end of the first period, but fell behind at the half by 17-15 as Slatington scored 15 points in the second quarter to eight for the Mountaineers.

June Kellogg led Stroud Union with 17 points on eight field goals and one from the foul line.

Cavalier Matmen Drop 5th

EAST Stroudsburg High School's Cavalier matmen last night went down to their fifth defeat of the season, 31-23, as visiting Hellertown gained verdicts in four of the last six bouts, all via pins.

The Cavaliers of Coach Marlin Martz went out in front by 14-9 after the first six bouts before Hellertown took over the lead on three straight falls by John Davco, John Hari and Dick Yonney.

Bud Stann kept his undefeated record very much alive by pinning Hellertown's Dick Brown in the unlimited division with a body press in 1:44. It was Stann's eighth fall in as many appearances of the season. He also was awarded a victory by forfeit in another match.

Other East Stroudsburg winners were Ray Gallagher (95), Jack T. Hineine (127), Larry Gordon (133), and Randy Heller (165), all by decisions, and Don Sandt (112) by a fall.

The defeat dropped the Cavaliers below the .500 mark at 4-5. They have two matches remaining on their schedule.

The Daily Investor

Selling Stocks For Taxes

Q. For a period of years I bought shares of a certain stock at various prices — from as low as $3.50 to as high as $8 a share. My average cost (the total amount of money I invested, divided by the number of shares I own) is $5.25 a share. I do not want to sell all this stock. But I would like to sell those shares I bought at the highest prices — keeping those I bought at lower prices.

For tax purposes, can I use the actual cost price when I sell or must I use the average price? I have kept records of the price and date of each purchase.

A. You use the price you paid on each purchase. That's the normal (and usually the most advantageous) method when you sell any securities.

This is known as the "identified share" method.

Say you decide to sell 100 shares. You would naturally want to sell those for which you paid the highest price — in this case $8 a share.

If you sell at less than $8 a share, you will establish a capital loss which can be used to offset any capital gains you establish or to some extent to offset "ordinary income" — thereby saving you some tax dollars.

If you sell at more than $8 a share, you will establish a capital gain — which is taxable. But it will be a smaller capital gain (and a smaller tax bite) than if you sell some of the stock you bought at lower prices.

If you have possession of the stock certificates, pick out the one which represents the shares for which you paid the highest price. That's the certificate you should deliver to the broker who sells the stock for you.

If you have left your stock certificates with your broker, instruct the broker to sell your highest-priced shares. It would be wise to give the broker written instructions to sell a specified number of shares, purchased on such-and-such a date, at such-and-such a price.

You say you have kept records of the price and date of each purchase.

Barbers Honor Schoch

THE BARBERS of Stroudsburg held a banquet at the Town Room of the Town Tavern recently, and Chasuncey D. Schoch was the guest of honor. He was presented with a box of cigars.

The meeting was in commemoration of the beginning of Local 509, Journeymen Barbers, Hair Dressers, and Cosmetologists International Union of America, 60 years ago.

Newly installed officers for 1963 are Ernest Schwartz, president; Frank Summa, vice president; Russell Swingle, secretary-treasurer; Al Scavo, recording secretary; Don Summa, guide, and Al Sweeney, guardian.

The barbers reviewed the original preamble to the union charter, and the first officers of the local. They noted the improved working conditions and shorter hours of barbers since 1903.

Industry Grows Along Erie-Lacka.

CLEVELAND — Erie-Lackawanna Railroad had a lively upturn in the number of industrial plants located along its right of way during the past year. A total of 153 industries either built new facilities or expanded their present operations, H. C. Schmidt, vice president — sales, reported yesterday.

When in full production, these plants are expected to add more than $4½ million a year in freight revenues to the Erie-Lackawanna, as well as increased employment opportunities in the communities involved. In 1961 the railroad was successful in adding three new and expanded industries with potential revenues of $3½ million.

In the past year, 101 industries were assisted in securing new plants or building sites through increased industrial development activities by the railroad, Schmidt said. Some firms have already moved into existing plants while in other cases ground clearing of building sites has been started.

In addition, 52 industries already served by the Erie-Lackawanna have expanded or are in process of increasing their production capacities.

Cake Presented To County Home

FRANK GOCHAL, of Bartonsville, representing the Young Republicans Club of Monroe County, yesterday presented Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henry, superintendent of Monroe County Home, with a Valentine's Day cake.

The cake was to be cut and distributed to the guests of the home with the next meal.

Always flattering. Never far-fetched. R & K knows this is a must with you and expresses it in an eased Spring costume with linen-y overblouse. The "Bramble Wheat" tweed, a full-bodied blend of rayon/cotton/silk. 30.00
